Third-party rankings from Barron's, for example, are no guarantee of future investment success. Working with a highly-rated adviser does not ensure that a client or prospective client will experience a higher level of performance. These ratings should not be construed as an endorsement of the adviser by any client. Generally, rankings are based on information prepared and submitted by the adviser. The Barron's rankings are based on the volume of assets managed by advisers and their teams, revenues generated, and the quality of the advisers' practices. The quality of practice component of the ranking includes regulatory record, length of time in the industry, charitable and philanthropic work, and other factors. Investment performance is not an explicit criterion, because clients' investment goals differ.
